The Daily Press,
HONGKONG, DECEMBER 21st, 1891.

This notorious Defensio Populi ad Populus has produced a reply from a Christian catechist at Canton, which is being circulated as a tract. A translation appears in the N. G. Daily News. Though the reply lacks the literary tawdry and force of the attack, being in fact somewhat prolix, it is interesting and useful in setting forth the pre-missionary case from a Chinese point of view. In reply to the question whether the missionaries' unbroken virtuous thoughts in men and cause them to become better citizens and more loyal members of society, the writer of the reply refers to the fact that the opening of hospitals for the sick andounding hospitals by missionaries has been followed by the opening of halls for preaching the sacred edict. One of the points made by the author of the Defensio was that it was the vicious, the weak, the ignorant, and the needy that followed the Christian religion in China. The writer of the reply claims that it is he who is the true heretic to Christianity, and the text "They that are whole need not a physician but they that are sick," and "I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance" are quoted. As a proof that it is not there hope of pecuniary gain that induces men to become Christians he points to the fact that in Hongkong, in the London Mission, the Chinese have erected a church at a cost of more than $7,000, that each year they contribute more than $700 from their own resources, and that in Canton one of the congregations has followed the same example.

The reply to the charge that the Chinese Christians contemn and abandon ancestral traditions is worth quoting in full:—
"I do not certainly know to what in particular you refer when bringing this charge. It ought to be known that the worship of spirits in modern times is not that of Confucianism and still less of Christianity. Should it not then be abandoned? The modern worship of ancestors is not that of the Confucian cult. The worship at the tombs is not an ancient custom. Confucius did

"not worship at the tomb. Nor did his personal disciples. Were they therefore guilty of despising ancient customs? But as to taking care of tombs the Christians are accustomed to do this with much devotedness though it was not an ancient observance." Notwithstanding our catastrophist, however, the observances at the tombs of ancestors, whether they date back to the time of Confucius or not, are at the present date regarded by the Chinese as a most sacred duty. It seems regrettable that the missionary body should deem it necessary to assume a hostile attitude to a custom which in itself appears harmless and which in its motive cannot fail to command respect. From the theologian's point of view everything depends upon the exact significance attached to the observances in the minds of those who perform or attend the rites; if they are intended as worship of the spirits of the ancestors of course Christian theology can effect no compromise with them, but this is a disputed point. There are very earnest and able missionaries who hold that the observances at the tombs commonly called ancestral worship, while attended with much that may be considered idolatrous, might by modification be made as unobjectionable from a Christian point of view as the memorial services which are not infrequently held in Christian countries in honour of the distinguished dead.

The writer of the reply to the Defensio reproduces the charge that the Tulpung Rebellion was in any sense a Christian movement. HUNG SUREN-SURE, he says, made use of the Christian teaching as a blind to deceive and give him a hold for developing his dangerous schemes; the mischief was in the man, not in the Christian religion. A similar reply is made to the charge that the glass who now come to China and pose as the champions of science and intellectual enlightenment formerly in Europe burnt and persecuted persons who held views different from their own.

Birdges and wild cats would seem to be not infrequent visitors to Kowloon. Within recent days three out of the former have been killed in the city, the other evening, after a severe struggle with a dog, the latter succumbed to wounds inflicted by its panting antagonist.

Mr. Goulnour about him. I told the magistrate everything that the affair had occurred three years before I mentioned it to Mrs. Goulnour. I was three or four months after I gave the information to Mr. Goulnour, I was informed that he had not done so, I should not have mentioned it to anyone about Minchinset and the child. It was several months after the affair occurred that I spoke about it. I never had any quarrel with Mrs. Goulnour about girls. I never had a boy and girl in my house. I used generally to go to the police station to get information about girls. They liked one another and we separated. I was asked by the police to go to the Court and give evidence against Minchinset. I was told that he had not done so. He did not speak to me about selling girls. I left Minchinset on account of my daughter Emily. They liked one another and we separated. I was asked by the police to go to the Court and give evidence against Minchinset. Pabor; expected, French Viper. As the interior was a solid brick wall, she is expected to burst through in the first, and her way to Thailand. If so success no doubt the Pabor will follow in her wake, and then the small settlement will be alive with gun-boats.

CHINAN FU.

21st New Year. The American missionary has had a little more trial of patience. The Tsochi, who has tried to get the writer sold, and in the presence of two of the george recognized the claim of the mission in the possession of the property he had, had even his temper well. The mission, and the author had been passing to the construction of the new, and plans were being made for guaranteeing a place in the building, when some 70 names were offered in a petition by men in the out suburb, expressing fear that trouble might arise if the foreigner would insist in then setting out invasions of some 50 of the names to obtain a feast. About 15 came. Also the two leading representatives of the george, and the two main deputies of Foreign Affairs. The george were urged to accept the path of forbearance, and refused to present a statement that they would not oppose the course of the case. A statement was presented, but did not satisfy the Tsochi. They are now awaiting the arrival of another statement, and it is expected that everything will be settled up and building begun within a few days.

A special agent, one who went to settle matters at Chinkiang, has been appointed to the post of collector to collect up cases connected with the German Consulate. There are four different cases on hand, the last one having only lately occurred, viz., the destruction of a chapel. The magistrates there are given the mission a great deal of trouble, when the German Consul went there, and the matter was rendered. The Governor at that time, Chang Kai, was ordered to have the official removed, but this was not done. The German Bishop on his return sought an interview with the magistrate, but was at first refused. The present Governor is very intelligent and feels like disgracing the man, but, as he is only 20 years of age, doesn't care as much as any other in Africa, and already made himself rich. A report has been sent to the district, being the headquarters of that mission, but no result of capital character has been reached. One more attempt is now made.

The george, a prominent lawyer, Lung Sing, a Mancou, has arrived and is now here. He was formerly an official in Kien-chow. This is the Governor of the province is a Mancou, and the Judge a Mancou, rather an unusual occurrence in one province.

A few days since there passed through here a former official of the george, a Kien-chow man, and now Pan Chintang, in his office in this city for a number of years, being for a while the Treasurer. He was then degraded to the rank of Tsochi, and in that capacity did good service on the Yellow River. Being successful, he was sent some distance to Kien-chow to help on the great gap in the Yellow River. There he, along with several others, was degraded, but in a short time he was again promoted and made Judge in Shanxi. For a while he had the seals of Treasury and that of Governor, and now is made provincial Treasurer in this city. In a few days he will some day return to Kien-chow, where he will be given a seat of ability and is destined to rise still higher. He has one son here of the rank of Tsochi, and another of the rank of prefect in Soochow—Daily News correspondent.

NEWCHWANG.

30th November. Yesterday the captain of a steamer left the steamer Liung-pa, which had been ashore seven days on or near the west bank. She was knocked about by the flooding seas and sprang a leak. There is no much chance of saving either the vessel or the cargo, as it is next to impossible to get boats for such purposes. Some of the shanmen were on the Bar for several days, but all have now crossed.
